England and Scotland form the greater part of these Islands. Ireland is the next in size. The little neighbouring islands, which are so small upon the Map as to be mere dots, are chiefly little bits of Scotland, broken off, I dare say, in the course of a great length of time, by the power of the restless water.

From Orwell's "England Your England" (emphasis ours): "In England patriotism takes different forms in different classes, but it runs like a connecting thread through nearly all of them ... In the working class patriotism is profound, but it is unconscious. The working man's heart does not leap when he sees a Union Jack.
