Numerical weather prediction (NWP) uses mathematical models of the atmosphere and oceans to predict the weather based on current weather conditions. Though first attempted in the 1920s, it was not until the advent of computer simulation in the 1950s that numerical weather predictions produced realistic results. A number of global and regional forecast models are run in different countries ...

Statistical inference is the process of using data analysis to deduce properties of an underlying probability distribution. Inferential statistical analysis infers properties of a population, for example by testing hypotheses and deriving estimates. It is assumed that the observed data set is sampled from a larger population. Inferential statistics can be contrasted with descriptive statistics.

The Multiple correspondence analysis (MCA) is an extension of the simple correspondence analysis (chapter @ref(correspondence-analysis)) for summarizing and visualizing a data table containing more than two categorical variables. It can also be seen as a generalization of principal component analysis when the variables to be analyzed are categorical instead of quantitative (Abdi and Williams 2010).
