Flappers were a generation of young Western women in the 1920s who wore short skirts, bobbed their hair, listened to jazz, and flaunted their disdain for what was then considered acceptable behavior. Flappers were seen as brash for wearing excessive makeup, drinking, smoking cigarettes, driving automobiles, treating sex in a casual manner, and otherwise flouting social and sexual norms.

Years of plowing and planting left soil depleted and weak. As a result, clouds of dust fell like brown snow over the Great Plains. Farmers faced tough times. While most Americans enjoyed relative prosperity for most of the 1920s, the Great Depression for the American farmer really began after World ...

That says more about women than it says about Tesla. Like another commenter said (in what is one of the greatest comments I've ever seen here) on a recent article, women's instincts haven't caught up with civilization and society; they're still attracted to outdated caveman traits and behaviors that are good in a natural, primal world, but negative in a civilized world (danger ...
