In physics, power is the rate of doing work or transferring heat, the amount of energy transferred or converted per unit time. Having no direction, it is a scalar quantity. In the International System of Units, the unit of power is the joule per second (J/s), known as the watt in honour of James Watt, the eighteenth-century developer of the steam engine condenser.

Wind power is the use of air flow through wind turbines to provide the mechanical power to turn electric generators. Wind power, as an alternative to burning fossil fuels, is plentiful, renewable, widely distributed, clean, produces no greenhouse gas emissions during operation, consumes no water, and uses little land. The net effects on the environment are far less problematic than those of ...

A hydraulic system is any component that uses a fluid to generate and transmit energy from one point to another within the enclosed system. This force can be in the form of linear motion, force or rotary motion. This is based on the Pascal's Laws. Don't worry, you'll understand how this law works when I'll be discussing the working principle of these power packs.
